Matthew A. Robinson
Co-Director
McLean Hospital
Outpatient Trauma Clinic

Matthew A. Robinson, PhD, is co-director of McLean's Outpatient Trauma Clinic and provides individual, group, and couples treatment for trauma and dissociative disorders. He is also an instructor in psychology in the Department of Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School.

As a member of the Dissociative Disorders and Trauma Research Program, Dr. Robinson is an investigator on grant-funded, cutting-edge research. His collaborations focus on understanding the biological underpinnings of trauma and dissociative disorders and how biological markers might help predict treatment outcomes.

In this presentation, Robinson, PhD, provides an overview of PTSD, DID, and other trauma-related disorders, debunks common myths about these conditions, and covers the evidence-based treatment methods to ensure that people are able to manage their symptoms and live rewarding lives.
